The O'Toole Farm
Mount Savage
Private

ca. 1900

The O'Toole farmhouse is typical of rural housing built around the turn of the century in Allegany County. The "L" shaped frame building is two stories tall, three bays wide and one bay deep. A barn on the property is of mortise and extended tenon construction with vertical planks covering the walls.

This farmhouse was built shortly after Charles O'Toole purchased the property in 1898. During the latter half of the 19th century the property was part of John S. Combs' "Mount Savage Farm."

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The O'Toole Farmhouse is located near Mile Lane north of Mount Savage. The "L" shaped dwelling is two stories tall and three bays wide on the southern facade ground floor. Wall construction is frame covered with insul brick siding. The gabled roof is covered with tin with a standing seam. Eaves consist of a boxed cornice and soffit with returns. The building rests on a high rubble stone foundation.

Porches include a hip roofed porch with square posts on the facade and a shed roofed porch with turned posts on the eastern elevation. Most windows of the house are 1/1 sashes. There are 2/2 sashes on the facade ground floor. The main entrance in the center of the facade includes a one light transom and a modern door. Two brick chimneys located on the interior of the house have corbeled caps.

A barn to the southeast of the farmhouse is frame with mortise and extended tenon construction. Walls are covered with horizontal plank siding on the ground level and of vertical planks on the upper level. The gabled roof is covered with corrugated metal. Chevron-shaped ventilators are found in the peaks of the gable ends. A high rubble stone foundation is on the western elevation of the barn.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The O'Toole Frame House was built late in the nineteenth century by Charles O'Toole, Jr. Oral tradition indicates that the house was built by members of the O'Toole family at a cost of $500.00. (interviews with Mrs. Alice Carney 4/2/81 and Mrs. James Weimer 9/7/81) Charles O'Toole Jr. acquired the property in 1898 from Mrs. Althea Combs Ruykendall the daughter of John Sampson Combs. Combs was the grandson of Johnathan Arnold, one of the original settlers of the Mount Savage area originally known as "Arnold's Settlement." After the death of his grandfather Combs, a resident of Lonaconing, purchased the interests of the other heirs of Arnold's estate. In 1898 Mrs. Ruykendall sold 190 acres of the "Mount Savage Farm" to Charles O'Toole and other land to the Ewald and Henckel families. (Charles Carney, History Mount Savage, interview with Mrs. James Weimer, Allegany County Equity Case #4353, and Allegany County Land Records Liber 85 Folio 67-72.) The house is typical of rural housing built around the turn of the century in Allegany County. The "L"-shaped frame building is two stories tall and three bays wide. A large barn on the property is of mortice and tenon construction with vertical planks covering the walls.
